

Daniel Johnson
Testing

In testing my index and contact files in various browsers, I noticed very minimal differences. The page looked slightly different simply because the layout of each browser is set up a bit differently from the others. The site content itself had some very slight variations, but it was hard to even point out the differences without really looking closely.